Eastern Sierra Photographers featured in Venice Gallery

Listen to them speak about their photography and provide tips to improve yours

(Bishop, California) – On Tuesday, June 26, 2012, The G2 Gallery in Venice, CA will partner with the Eastern Sierra Land Trust for a juried exhibit of photography Art for Conservation: The Eastern Sierra Land Trust featuring seven photographers from the region.

From William Henry Jackson to Ansel Adams to Galen Rowell, the Eastern Sierra has provided a continual source of inspiration for photographers seeking new frontiers and unforgettable vistas. But the region is also the location of working farms and ranches, provides wildlife with habitat and migration routes, and supplies Los Angeles with its clean drinking water. Permanently preserving these invaluable assets is the mission of the Eastern Sierra Land Trust (ESLT). ESLT assists families to preserve their working farms and ranches, helps landowners protect the region's critical habitats, and works with the entire Eastern Sierra community to offer the opportunity to connect with the land through field trips, seminars, and special outings.

Featured in the exhibit are seven photographers of note, all from the Eastern Sierra region. The photographers include John Dittli, Robb Hirsch, Stephen Ingram, Rick Kattelmann, Nolan Nitschke, Andy Selters, and Vern Clevenger,. All proceeds from the art sales will benefit the Eastern Sierra Land Trust and an opening reception at the gallery will be held on June 30, from 6:30–9:00 pm.

ESLT is excited to host a Brown Bag Lunch with Art for Conservation photographer Andy Selters before the show on Wednesday June 6th from 12:15-1:15pm. Come by the ESLT garden at 176 Home St. on your lunch break to learn some tips and tricks to improve your photography and hear Andy's stories behind capturing his favorite shots. The event is free and open to the public so make sure to bring your photography questions!
